Craft Ideas Are Shared In Schools

Kathy Meggison and Dwayne Johnson admire the "Ojos de Dios" made under their supervision by the second graders in Mrs. Alvis' class. The second graders pictured are Margaret Meggison, Donald Martin, Larry Harris, Ron Seay, and Jo Ann Jamison.

Sixth graders from Mrs. Bryan's class visited the Primary School recently to share Christmas craft ideas with them. These demonstrations were a culmination of several weeks' work in practical communication conducted as part of their sixth grade English class. Every project completed by these children was an example of things that could be made of recycled or scrap material.

Virginia Energy News

Plan your Christmas menu early. Make up your list with care. Check your stores for specials coming up. Save gas by avoiding unnecessary trips.

During this busy pre-holiday season try cooking several meals at one time. You'll save energy by fully using your stove during the longer cooking period, and just heating your own pre-cooked meals later.

Here's an easy way to save energy and be festive too. When you turn on your Christmas tree lights, turn off the equivalent amount of light elsewhere in the house.

If you're going away for the holidays, save energy at home. Lower the thermostat to around 50° . . . shut off, or dial down, your water heater . . . empty and unplug your refrigerator.

Are you using your radiators as bookshelves or catchalls? Clear them off. Clutter on radiator tops impedes the flow of heat - - and increase your fuel bill.

Use your kitchen vent sparingly. In just one hour it can literally blow away a houseful of warmed air.

People generate heat. Turn heat back if you've having a "crowd" for dinner. Turn down the lights too, and serve by candlelight. Your Christmas will be more festive - - and energy-saving.

UNDERSTANDING MENTAL HEALTH

a health column from the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration
U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare

Mary Lystad, Ph.D., of the National Institute of Mental Health, provides clues to how children view themselves and how they relate to the larger world.

It includes stories and drawings by first-graders, third-graders, and fifth-graders, a discussion of their stories and drawings from the point of view of development, and a study of the books children read and those adults praise. An appendix provides lists of those books favored by children and those chosen by adults.

In a foreword to the new publication, Dr. Bertram S. Brown, Director of NIMH, points out that the study shows changes in the child's sociocultural perceptions over time, where the child's interests lie, how these interests differ according to the social background of the child, and how they differ from the reading materials commonly offered him.

A CHILD'S WORLD will interest parents, teachers, school counselors, librarians, and others. Copies may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402, at $3.10 per copy. (DHEW Publication No. (ADM)74-118, stock #1724-00380.)

"If you're the kind of person who really likes to get your hands into a project, making gift wrapping paper provides you with an excellent opportunity," Habel said. For fun, she suggested the following:

Dip the palm of your hand in poster paint and make hand-prints all over shelf paper or brown wrapping paper.

When you think you've mastered this, try making "bear tracks" across the paper. To do this dip just your palm in the poster paint, make your palm print on the paper. And dip your fingers in the paint and print them just above your palm print.

"These should give you a few ideas of your own. Put them into action by working on your own personalized gift wrapping paper, this work will seem like play," Habel said.
